Mareen Duvall and some of his descendants.

February 1st, 1929.

17 p. typescript. 29 1/2 cm.

Some of the material was gathered from the registers of All Hallows Parish, in Anne Arundel County, and Queen Anne's Parish, in Prince George's County, Maryland. But, by far the greatest part, of that given of the first five generations, was gleaned from public records in the Maryland Land Office, at Annapolis, and from those in the County Records, in the County of Prince George's. Resources have also been in the Maryland Historical Society, and to the very accurate notes of the family, made by the late Justice Gabriel Duvall, of the United States Supreme Court, to which I have had free access.

SHelf LIST

This work has been done, not without considerable expense and much patient labor, through a period of over twenty-five years, as time would permit from exacting professional duties. Nevertheless, the gathering of this material has afforded much pleasure in the consciousness that the bringing together of these interesting and vital facts into one compact, and accessible body, may give, not only the present generation, whose progenitors are mentioned, but to generations yet to come, accurate information, not otherwise easily obtainable, and the original sources of which may be at any time partially, or wholly destroyed, and thus lost for all time.

Besides, it is deemed to be a duty every citizen owes to his Country to do what he can to preserve the ancient records of those sturdy and adventurous pioneers, who crossed the wide uncharted seas, and penetrated the primeval forests to establish an asylum, where religious toleration might be practiced under the protection of a free, separate, Civil Government.

An able writer well says: "To gather together memorials of those who have gone before us to reconstruct their living portraits from historical fragments, so widely scattered, is a work of time, of patience, and unremitting toil; but once completed, the ancestral line reaching down the vista of the past, will stand out clearly before us, the images of our fathers tenderly live in our minds, and we shall reverently cherish their memories, as will the generations to come."

And Edmund Burke said: "Those who do not treasure up the memory of their ancestors do not deserve to be remembered by posterity."

A still higher Authority demands us, to honor our forefathers, that our days may be long.

The cultivation of family history is, therefore, one of the essentials to the welfare of Society.

FOREWORD

Some of the data used in the following pages were secured from family Bibles, and other private sources, but a large part was gathered from the registers of All Hallows Parish, in Anne Arundel County, and Queen Anne's Parish, in Prince George's County, Maryland. But, by far, the greatest part, of that given of the first five generations, was gleaned from public records in the Maryland Land Office, at Annapolis, and from those in the Court Houses of the two Counties mentioned above. Recourse has also been had to the large and invaluable collections of the Maryland Historical Society, and to the very accurate notes of the family made by the late Justice Gabriel Duvall, of the United States Supreme Court, to which I have had free access.

Five generations of American ancestors preceded Richard Isaac Duvall in Maryland. The original ancestor, Mareen Duvall, came from France to Anne Arundel County, about the middle of the seventeenth century. He was a man of strong religious principles as the sequel shows, and of a family of note, bearing arms:

Arms-Gules, a chevron argent between two mullets pierced, and a battle axe of the last.

Crest-A lion sejant, per pale argent and gules sustaining a shield as in the Arms.

Motto-Pro Patria.

Richard Isaac Duvall, of the sixth generation of the family in America, was of a strong and sturdy type of character, honorable and upright, and unflinching in his advocacy of any cause he deemed a righteous one. That trait of his Huguenot ancestor was transmitted to him unweakened by the lapse of time.

Mareen Duvall, the first of the family who settled in Maryland, is said to have come from the neighborhood of Nantes, Brittany, and some support is lent to this statement by the fact that he gave to the first piece of land patented to him the name of "Lavall", and there is a town called "Val" and a chateau "Laval" some sixty or seventy miles from Nantes. The name "Mareen" is clearly a corruption of the French "Marin" and he was undoubtedly a French Huguenot. Although the Edict of Nantes was not repealed until 1685, those of "the religion", as the Huguenots called themselves, were nevertheless severely oppressed by the government, and many of them emigrated to other lands. It was doubtless for this reason that Mareen Duvall settled in Maryland, to round out his days in peace, safe from the persecution that prevailed in his native land. The date of his arrival in Maryland is not recorded, but it was certainly before 1659 and probably not far from 1650. At any rate he made his demand for land, July 25, 1659, and this being duly laid out for him he had a patent, January 22, 1659-60, for a tract called "Lavall" on the west side of South river, in Anne Arundel county (Land Office, Lib. 4, fol. 431). Other tracts patented to him were "Middle Plantation", 600 acres, on the south side of South river, patented 1664 (Land Office, Lib. 7, fol. 450); "Duvall's Addition", 165 acres, on the west side of South river, patented August 8, 1670; and "Duvall's Range", 200 acres on east side of north branch of Patuxent river, in Anne Arundel county, patented September 10, 1672 (ibid. Lib. 14, fol. 22; Lib. 17, fol. 290).

Another tract called "Rich Neck", and containing 200 acres, was surveyed for Mareen Duvall and William Young, on the south side of South river, May 25, 1664 (Rent Roll, Lib. 1, fol. 33). In 1678 the Maryland Assembly passed an act appropriating a large amount of tobacco, then serving as currency, in payment of the service of those who had taken part in the recent expedition against the Nanticoke Indians (Md. Arch. vii, 87), and Mareen Duvall was paid eighty pounds of tobacco for his participation in the expedition (ibid 96). September 13, 1681, Thomas Francis and Nicholas Gassaway, writing to the Council about Indian outrages, state that in Anne Arundel county the Indians have killed a negro and wounded two white men-one mortally. The people are in great distress, since the Indians keep them constantly terrorized, and attack their dwelling houses, especially those of Mr. Duvall, and Richard Snowden (Md. Arch. xvii, 24). In 1683 an act was passed by the Assembly, and approved by Governor and Council, for the encouragement of trade by establishing with great liberality towns and ports of entry in all the seaboard counties, and under the terms of this act Mr. "Mareen Duvall" is appointed one of the Commissioners for establishing towns and ports in Anne Arundel county (Md. Arch. vii, 611).

In one instance a glimpse is afforded of the immigrant's political views. Colonel Nicholas Greenberry, in a communication to the Governor dated July 25, 1692, asserts that the principal rendezvous of the leaders of the Jacobite party were at "Darnall's, Chew's Dorsey's and one Mareen Duvall's" (Md. Arch. viii, 343). During his long residence in Maryland, Mareen Duvall acquired a large landed estate by purchase, in addition to the tracts taken up by him, and was thus able to provide handsomely for his large family of twelve children. He styles himself "merchant" in his will and he doubtless engaged in the export of tobacco, a very profitable occupation in those days, and one that stood in high repute both in Virginia and in Maryland.

Mareen Duvall was three times married. The name of his first wife has not been preserved. His second wife, Susanna, is named in his will as the mother of his son, Mareen the younger, or Mareen II., as he is usually designated. His third wife, Mary (Stanton) Duvall, sister of Daniel Stanton, of Philadelphia, was married to him about 1693, the year before he died, and bore him no children. According to Judge Duvall, who left a thoroughly reliable genealogy of the Duvall family (and of whom later) his grandfather, Benjamin Duvall, was born in 1692, and was the son of the immigrant by his second wife, Susanna. In all probability, therefore, Mrs. Susanna Duvall died at the birth of her youngest son, Benjamin, in 1692, and Mareen was married to his third wife, Mary Stanton in 1693. Mareen Duvall died in August, 1694, and the following year his widow, Mrs. Mary Duvall, married Colonel Henry Ridgely, in proof of which we have the following: 9 October, 1695, "came Major Henry Ridgely, of Anne Arundel county, who intermarried with Mary, relict and executrix of Mareen Duvall, late of said county, deceased, and exhibited the inventory of said deceased's estate, etc. (Test, Proceedings). Major Henry Ridgely was soon promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel, and in 1695 his landed property, formerly in Anne Arundel county, was included in the newly formed county of Prince Georges'. He died in 1710, and by his will, dated April 30, 1705, and proved July 13, 1710, appointed his wife, Mary, his sole executrix. She soon married her third husband, Rev. Jacob Henderson, rector of Queen Anne Parish, Prince Georges' county, and afterward Commissary for the Province under the Bishop of London. Rev. Jacob Henderson died August 21, 1751. Mrs. Henderson survived until 1762. As she was married to Mareen Duvall in 1693, she must have been very old at the time of her death".

The order of the birth of Mareen Duvall's children followed below is that given by Judge Gabriel Duvall, and is shown by deposition filed in Provincial Court records. It is believed, on the same authority, that Mareen Duvall's first wife was the mother of the first five children, while Susanna was the mother of the remaining seven. It is to be noted that the immigrant had two sons named Mareen, both named in his will, and that Susanna was the mother of the younger. Mareen Duvall, who died in 1694, had issue by his first wife: 1. Mareen, "the elder," born in 1662, married, 1685-86, Frances, daughter of Captain Thomas and Mary (Wells) Stockott, of Anne Arundel county. 2. John, buried April 20, 1711; married, before August, 1685, Mary, daughter of William Jones, of Anne Arundel county. 3. Eleanor, married, before 1694, John Roberts, of Virginia. 4. Samuel, born 1667; married, June 18, 1697, Elizabeth Clark. 5. Susanna, married, before 1694, Robert Tyler, of Prince George's county.

Mareen Duvall and his second wife, Susanna, had issue: 6. Lewis, married, March 6, 1699, Martha, daughter of Robert Ridgely, principal secretary of the province; removed to South Carolina. 7. Mareen, through whom descent is traced. 8. Catherine, married, October 22, 1700, William Orrick. 9. Mary, married, July 5, 1701, Rev. Henry Hall, rector of St. James' Parish, Anne Arundel county. 10. Elizabeth, apparently unmarried in 1694. 11. Johanna, married, August 12, 1703; Richard Poole. 12. Benjamin, born 1692; died 1774; married, 1713; Sophia Griffith. The latter were the grandparents of Justice Gabriel Duvall, of the Supreme Court of the United States.

Justice Gabriel Duvall was born December 6, 1752. He married (first) a Miss Bryce, daughter of Captain Robert Bryce, of Annapolis, July 24, 1787. He married (second), May 5, 1795, Jane Gibbon, daughter of Captain James Gibbon, of Philadelphia. Beginning when very young he spent sixty-one years of his life in public service. In early life he was clerk to the Conventions in Maryland, clerk to the Council of Safety, and clerk to the first House of Representatives under the new Government. Later he was member of Congress. Then after serving as Judge of the General Court of Maryland and Comptroller of the Treasury of the United States, he was appointed Associate Judge of the United States Supreme Court, and held this honorable position from October, 1811, until his resignation in 1835 or 1836. He died March 6, 1844.

Mareen Duvall, "the younger", eldest child of Mareen Duvall, the Huguenot, and his second wife, Susanna, was born in Anne Arundel county, Maryland, in 1680. He is styled of "Great Marsh", but he removed to and died at his plantation, "Pleasant Grove", Queen Anne's Parish, Prince Georges' county, Maryland, in June, 1741. He married, October 21, 1701, Elizabeth Jacob, who died in Prince Georges' county in February, 1752, daughter of Captain John Jacob. Children: Mareen, born March 14, 1703, married, November 25, 1725, Ruth Howard; Susannah, born September 12, 1704, married (first) Mr. Fowler, (second) Mark Brown; Elizabeth, born July 20, 1706, married Dr. William Denune; Samuel, through whom descent is traced; Anno, born May 10, 1709; Benjamin, born April 4, 1711, married Mary Wells; Jacob, born April 19, 1715, married Miss Bourne, of Calvert county, Maryland; Mary, born March 22, 1717; Lewis born December 3, 1721, married Miss Hardesty; Gabriel, born September 13, 1724, died unmarried.

Samuel Duvall, son of Mareen and Elizabeth (Jacob) Duvall, was born at the parental estate, "Pleasant Grove," Prince Georges' county, Maryland, November 27, 1707, and died in November, 1775. He was a substantial planter and a man of influence, spending his entire life in Prince Georges' county. He married, May 16, 1732, Elizabeth Mulliken, born September 25, 1711, died after November 20, 1775, daughter of James and Charity (Belt) Mulliken, and granddaughter of James Mulliken, the Virginia settler. Children: James, born March 31, 1733, married his cousin, Sarah Duvall, daughter of Mareen and Ruth (Howard) Duvall; Charity, born May 6, 1734, married Mr. McDougal; Elisha, died January 8, 1837, married and left a son Benjamin; Elizabeth, born May 15, 1738, married Mr. Gover; Samuel, of further mention; Margaret, born January 30, 1742, married Mr. Denune; Jacob L., born May 13, 1744; Jeremiah, born August 24, 1745; Jesse, born April 4, 1748; Gabriel, born October 20, 1751.

Samuel (2) Duvall, son of Samuel (1) and Elizabeth (Mulliken) Duvall, was born July 7, 1740, and was a successful and influential planter of Prince George's county, Maryland. He is believed to have been, according to family tradition, a soldier of the Revolutionary War, serving in the Maryland line. He went safely through his military experiences, and finally passed away in September, 1804, near the place of his birth. He married Mary Higgins, born in 1741, died prior to July 26, 1800, daughter of Higgins and Sarah, his wife. Issue: Richard died in 1832; unmarried; Tobias, married February 5, 1795, Sarah Willett, and died in 1835; Walter; Colmore, married February 5, 1791, Elizabeth Peach; Samuel died in 1838, Beale, a merchant of Baltimore City, married first April 28, 1800, Margery Belt, daughter of Captain Jeremiah Belt, (second) April 11, 1806, Elizabeth Williams; Barton, married Hannah Isaac; Levi: Sarah, married Samuel Peach; Elender, married William Williams; Rachel, married a Mr. Hill; Ann; Elisha, married and his issue.

He married, November 26, 1811, (lic.) Hannah Isaac, born in 1788, died March 10, 1826, daughter of Richard Isaac, Jr., Esq., of Prince George's County, and Anne (Williams) Isaac, his wife, her mother a daughter of Stockett and Mary (Waters) Williams, of Anne Arundel County, Maryland. They had issue: Mareen, born in 1812, died August 1831, unmarried; Richard Isaac, of further mention; Dr. Philip Barton, of further mention; Samuel Higgins, of further mention; Dr. Joseph Isaac, of further mention; Mary Ann, born October 28, 1822, died young; Henrietta, born in 1823, died October 17, 1826, all of Barton Duvall's children born in the old stone house (the parental homestead) between Collington and Bowie, Prince George's County, Maryland.

RICHARD ISAAC DUVALL, second son of Barton and Hannah (Isaac) Duvall, was born September 4, 1814, died January 23, 1871. He was educated under private instructors in Prince George's County, where he lived until about 1845, when he removed to Anne Arundel County. He was a man of great determination, and force of character, honorable and generous in all his business transactions. Though he never had the advantages of a college education, he was a great reader and possessed of wide and varied information, and was an entertaining conversationalist, taking an active part in public affairs. For many years he was engaged in farming near Collington in Prince George's County and near Millersville, Anne Arundel County and was one of the three originators, a founder, an original stockholder and trustee of Anne Arundel Academy, a famed School, situated near Millersville. He served as a Justice of the Peace for Prince George's and Anne Arundel Counties, was for several years a School Commissioner; a Commissioner of the Levy Court for two terms, and Register of Wills from 1861-2 until 1867. He was an extensive slaveholder, and at the outbreak of the Civil War his sympathies were with the Southern States. As a result of his candid and unconcealed expressions of opinion in favor of the cause of the Confederacy, he suffered arrest and imprisonment a number of times.

Richard Isaac Duvall married (first) October 2, 1833, Sarah Ann Duvall, born August 1, 1817, died January 2, 1854, daughter of Tobias and Sarah (Willett) Duvall, his wife. He married (second) May 30, 1855, Rachel Maria Waring, born March 21, 1828, died May 2, 1865, a daughter of Francis Waring of Prince George's County, and Elizabeth (Turner) Waring, his wife, he a soldier of the War of 1812-4 and fought at the battles of Bladensburg and North Point, Baltimore. He married (third) June 12, 1867, Mary Amanda Mitchell, born in 1837, died February 22, 1903, daughter of Henry and Lavinia (Duvall Mitchell). Issue of the first marriage:

He married (second) 24, November, 1881, Rosa Garland Gilman Neal Ellett, born 3, October, 1844, died 16, May, 1900, daughter of Robert Ellett, of Hanover County, Virginia, and Susan Garland Gilman (Neal) Ellett, his wife. James Monroe Duvall, and both of his wives are buried in the cemetery of Immanuel Protestant Episcopal Church, near Old Church, Hanover County, Va. He obtained his education in the Public Schools, and by private instruction. When he was about sixteen years old, he left school, to assist in managing and working his father's farms, until his marriage. He was a man of sobriety, integrity, veracity, and withal, a Christian gentleman. He had great aptitude for business, but little of the instinct for accumulating wealth. In social life he was companionable, and made friends easily, and retained them. He was a zealous, and devoted member, and Vestryman of Immanuel Church, and was known as an excellent farmer, and stock-raiser. He was trustee of educational institutions at different times, in the neighborhoods in which he resided, and took much interest in Civic affairs, though he never held any political office. He was an exemplary husband, and father, and always took a lively interest in the welfare of his younger brothers and sisters. By his first wife, Martha, he had two children, viz:

1. RICHARD MARCELLUS, Planter, born 8, March, 1859, in Anne Arundel County, Maryland; died unmarried, 15, October, 1911, in Hanover County, Virginia.

MARY VIRGINIA, born May 9, 1851, died July 29, 1853.

SALLIE DUVALL, born in Anne Arundel County, Maryland, 28th, December, 1853; died 4, October, 1926, unmarried, in Baltimore City, Maryland, at the Church Home and was buried in Saint Stephen's Protestant Episcopal Church Cemetery, near Millersville, Anne Arundel County, where her father and mother are buried.

She was educated at private schools in Baltimore City, and from the time she left school, she became a teacher in the Church Schools, - first in Baltimore, and afterward, for many years, until within a few years of her death, she was a teacher in the Church's Indian Mission Schools in different parts of the far West, and in the Federal Government Indian Schools in various locations of the West. She loved work among young children. She had many adventures while in this Mission work, under Bishop Hare, and others. Among them was the total destruction by fire of Saint Elizabeth's Church School, in South Dakota, where she lost all her clothes, jewelry, books and other valuable articles, and barely escaped with her life. It was by her efforts, and discipline that the children were all conducted from the burning buildings without loss of life, or injury. She had a similar experience at a Government School, in California, where, because of good training for such emergencies, no life was lost, although the buildings were, with their contents, totally destroyed.

After leaving school, she went with the Sisters of the Protestant Episcopal Church, established on Biddle Street by the late Rev. Dr. Hodges, of Old Saint Paul's Church, in Baltimore, where she acquired, under the Sisters of the Protestant Episcopal Church and Miss Frances, her preparation for Mission work, to which she devoted the most of her life.

Rachel Maria, the second wife of Richard Isaac Duvall is buried with her mother, Elizabeth Waring, and her youngest child, Rachel Frances, in the Cemetery of Baldwin Memorial Church, at Severn Cross Roads, near Millersville, Anne Arundel County.

Issue of Richard Isaac and Rachel Maria (Waring) Duvall, his second wife;
